PERSONAL APPEARANCE OF THE ZOCAVES As they appeared last night, no class of men could be better calculated to go through the fatigue of a campaign than Colonel Ellaworth's Zouaves. Thick set, rugged, and tough fellows they are, capable of bearing any amount of hardship. For activity, bravery, and hardshood, none can compare with these very fine boys, and these days are constant of the results. if they do not give a good account of themselves in battle, it will not be from a lack of any of those qualities.

uniform consists of a gray jacket trimmed with blue and red cord, gray pants, and red shirt, red cap with a blue band, and regulation overcoat. They are all armed with Sharp's breechloading rifles, worth $67 a-piece, and huge bowie knifes which can be attached to the muzales of their rifles, to answer the purpose of bayonets. Their knapsacks are made of rubber cloth, and in case of rain they can be used so as to protect the entire body from the wet. A blanket, tin plate, knife, fork, and various other articles, can be carried in each knapsack with out any inconvenience. A fatigue cap of gray felt, and a tin cup strapped on the outside of the knapsack, and a stout pair of shoes, completes

TREES BECEPTION. The regiment not being expected until this moraing, there were very few persons at the depot when they arrived. Those who were present, however, cheered most lustily, which was responded to in true Zouave style. The regiment responded to in true Zouave style. The regiment then marched up to the President's House, and then back to the Capitol—some of them filing off at the quarters provided for them on the way back. They all seemed extremely tired, and glad that they had arrived at their journey's so that now a little rest might be afforded

If there is any fighting to be done, the New York Fire Zonares want to be counted in for one chance, anyhow.

THE SIXTY-NINTH REGIMENT. We understand that, by order of Gen. B. F. Butler, commander of the forces between this city and Annapolis, the New York sixty-ninth ment, Col. Corcoran, will remain as a guard the road until Monday next, and will ther on the road until come to this city.

ARRIVAL OF THE RHODE ISLAND BATTERY. The magnificent Providence marine corps ar-tillery, with six guns, six caissons, a forge, an ambulance, and five baggage-wagons, from Providence, Rhode Island, arrived at the navy yard wharf, on board the steamer Kill-von-Kull, of New York, about four o'clock yesterday after-noon, and, after disembarking, passed up the noon, and, after disembarking, passed up the avenue to the President's Mansion, and passed in review before President Lincoln, who expressed himself as much pleated with the completeness of the battery, and with the patriotism of the noble little State which has come out so nobly in defence of the Union. They afterwards proceeded to the rear of the Interior Department, on Righth street, where they now remain, the soldiers being quartered in the Interior Depart-ment, with the remainder of the regiment.

This company is commanded by Captain C.

H. Tompkins, Lieutenants Reynolds, Remington, Towell, and Brestow, numbers one hundred and fifty able-bodied, fine-looking men, and has one hundred horses, some of them costing as high as $400. Their cannon are of James's patent rifle, and their other equipments all of the most durable kind. The battery is most complete in every particular, and they are fully prepared to take the field for a three months' campaign. The corps left Perryville at an early hour on Wednesday morning, and arrived here about four o'clock yesterday afternoon. Their appearance on the avenue excited universal admiration, and on the avenue excited universal admiration, and raise of gallant little Rhode Island was on every

A WEDDING IN THE RHODE ISLAND REGIMENT .-Polks will get married, it seems, and the gallant Rhode Islanders now in our midst seem to share in the general feeling. Last night a large number of invited guests were present at the Avenue House, to witness the ceremony of uniting in the holy bonds of matrimony Mr. Charles Tibbetts, a member of the Rhode Island regiment, to Miss Sarah Beaseley, one of the daughters of the

The marriage ceremony of the Unitarian Church was performed by Rev. Mr. Woodbury, chaplain of the regiment; and then ensued such a scene of kissing and hand-shaking as would stir the heart of an anchorite. The bride looked charmingly. She was dressed in the Turkish costume, and wore a blouse of cherry-colored satin, pants of blue, and a felt hat with white plumes—the national colors. The band of the regiment was in attendance, and performed several pieces in beautiful style.

THEATRE.—To-night, we are to have a rare novelty—nothing less than that of a soldier turning actor, and a comic actor at that. Mr. Edwin Langrich, of the twenty-fifth New York regiment, "Sketches in India." The beautiful comedy, "Sketches in India." The beautiful comedy, "Faint Heart Never Won Fair Lady," is also among the list of attractions, whilst Withera's splendid orchestra, second to none in the country, is to perform several of their popular melodies. The military were largely represented as dies. The military were largely represented at the Theatre last night; but to-night—well, all those who wish to get a good seat, will take the hint—that's all.

The Ringgold Artillery, of Reading, Pa., has won golden opinions from the United States au-thorities here. Major McDowell publicly stated that it was one of the best volunteer companies he had ever seen. It has clean quarters, and is under admirable drill. Captain McKnight reunder admirable drus. Cape.

THE RAISING OF THE STARS AND STRIPES ON THE INTERIOR DEPARTMENT.—The smootnement of the contemplated raising of the American flag on the east wing of the Interior Department Building drew an immense crowd to that vicinity yesterdrew an immense crowd to that vicinity yesterday, a large portion of which, as usual on such occasions, being of the fair sex.

Previous to the raising of the flag, the Rhode Island regiment, headed by the gallant Sprague, and accompanied by their fine band, formed on Seventh street in a line three files deep, facing the building. The Metropolitan Rifles, Captain Nalley, took their position on the roof of the east portico, and acted as a guard of bonor to President Lincoln, who was present, accompanied by the Secretary of State. Among the other notables present, we noticed Secretaries Chase and Smith, the latter accompanied by his lady and daughter, and his son-in-law, Mr. Hedrick; also Dr. Bake, Commissioner of Pablic Buildings;
Mr. Hol oway, Commissioner of Patents; Mr.
Dole, Commissioner of india i Affairs; and Judge
Edmonds, Commissioner of the General Land Office.

Office.

The signal being given, the President took hold of the halliards, to which the flag was attached, and holated it to the peak, amid loud and prolonged cheering from the vast crowd, the ladies waving their handkerchiefs, and the band playing the Star-Sjangled Banner. The crowd then gave three hearty cheers for President Lincoln, and three more for the Secretary of State, both of whom gracefully acknowledged the compliment.

The regiment then gave nine vociferous cheers for the Union, and nine more for the stars and stripes, topping off each with the Wampanoag war-whoop, which seemed to be so well relished by the crowd that it was instantly taken up by by the crowd that it was instantly taken up by them; and such a scene of hurraing, "tigering," and handkerchief-waving, has seidom been seen as then ensued, which was finished up by three rousing cheers for Governor Sprague.

By request, Mr. John T. Parsons, of this city, then saug, in his usual brilliant manner, "the Flag of our Union," which called forth another round of enthusiastic applause.

It was generally expected that Governor Sprague and Secretary Swith round have made secretary.

and Secretary Smith would have made speeches upon the occasion, but by some misunderstand-ing this part of the ceremonies was omitted.

THE SEVENTE REGIMENT ENCAMPED .- The seventh regiment of New York, after parading through our principal streets, yesterday afternoon, proceeded to the handsome grounds of William I. Stone, adjoining Columbian College, where they pitched their tents. The number of tents is 150, arranged in rows of fifteen each, and of sufficient size to accommodate some eight or ten each. The encampment will continue for several weeks, during which all the rules of camp life will be rigidly enforced.

THE TWELFTH NEW YORK REGIMENT.—This regiment, accompanied by their fine band, were out on drill yesterday, having with them their battery of two field pieces. They marched with great precision, and attracted much attention.

Mone Military Stores .- On Wednesday, about noon, the chartered steamer Keystone State, Lieunoon, the chartered steamer Reystone State, Leat-tenant Trenchard commanding, arrived here di-rect from New York. She made the passage in thirty-eight hours. The Boston also arrived at the same hour, from the same port, and the two steamers were convoyed by the Anacostis, (steam tug.) They are laden with military stores, pro-visions & c.

The Rhode Island regiment were out on parade yesterday afternoon, presenting their usual sol-dierly appearance. About five o'clock, they halted in front of the Capitol, and were mustered into the service of the Government.

Seward Guard, Company B, Metropolitan Rifles, Captain W. B. Webb, will meet every evening, until further notice, at Tenperance Hall, E street, for drill and the reception of members. Respectable citizens desirous of volunteering will find this a favorable opportunity.

We understand that Captain F. B. Schaffer, formerly of the National Rifles, of this city, is now in Upper Marlboro', organizing a secession

E. Stanley Schreiner, D. C., and - Dake, of Illinois, have been appoined to first-class clerk-ships in the Census bureau.

THE KILLING OF BOYD .- The trial of Sergeant J. H. Murphy, and ten other members of Company C, Union regiment, charged with killing Cornelius Boyd on Sunday morning last, was commenced yesterday afternoon, before Justice Donn, at the jail, Mr. Asbury Lloyd appeared as coun-sol for the defendants.

Mr. John H. Wise testified that he was not ac-are. John H. Wise testined that he was not ac-quainted with Boyd. He was present at the in-quest, and heard the statement of Sergeant Mur-phy before the jury. Murphy said that he had orders to take Boyd dead or alivs, from his su-perior officer. Witness thinks he said that Maperior officer. Witness thinks he said that Ma-jor McDowell gave the order. Boyd was charged with conspiring against the Government of the United States. Murphy stated he went to the house with the men, and called on Boyd to sur-render, in the name of the United States. Boyd opened the door and fired on them, setting his coat on fire. He then ordered the men to fire, which they obeyed, and killed Boyd. He (Murphy) had heard that Boyd sllowed persons to meet at his house to conspire against the Gov-ernment. Some of the parties had told winess that Boyd had shot at these from the window, and exclaimed at the time, "Take that, you s—so of b—s." They then advanced, and more shots were fired from the door. Witness knew nothing of the affair until the following day. He did not know anything of Boyd's character personally, but heard one gentleman say "that he was more afraid of Boyd than the whole State of Virginia." Since this affair, has beard persons say that he was a dangerous man.

Mrs. Ann Bean testified that the occurrence took place opposite her house. As she was about retiring, she heard a loud rap, and heard a voice in the crowd use the name of United States; heard them burst in the door, and heard report; the men then ran, and she thought that they were brave soldiers to shoot and run; some one said, "Men, don't run; "the panel was kuocked out before any report; the men return-ed and fired; she saw the man's coat on fire before the men shot; she saw the man smother the fire with his hand when the men ran; she is very certain that she heard the words United States used before she heard the shot; she did not observe the door or shutters open until after the firing; she never observed any persons visit the house of the deceased but persons she knew.

Alfred Wilkerson testified that, as he was standing at his door, three persons went into Mr. Martin's; in a little while after, Mr. Martin came Martin's; in a little white after, Mr. Martin came out, and asked witness to go with him to A. Grinder's. After some time, they went with Grinder towards the wharf, and stopped by Boyd's house, and had some conversation with him. After leaving the house, which they did by the side alley, they were arrested by the squad. He returned to the house with the squad. Murphy went to the door, and commanded Boyd. by the side alley, they were arrested by the squad. He returned to the house with the squad. Murphy went to the door, and commanded Boyd to open the door, in the name of the United States. He heard no reply, and the men kicked in the door. When the door was kicked in, saw the shot fired from the door. He observed the sergeant's coat on fire. He saw the fire from the door, but could not say positively whether it came from the inside. The fire caught to Murphy's coat. It was only one report he thought he heard from the door. Murphy told the men not to run, but advance and fire. The men then fired, but he did not know who fired, nor how many shots. He thinks that Mr. Grinder went to Mr. Boyd's, to notify him that the company was many shots. He thinks that Mr. Grinder went to Mr. Boyd's, to notify him that the company was after him. Witness was not present when the order was given by Captain Miller to his men, but distinctly heard the order given by the sergeant to the men to advance and fire. He n knew of Boyd's being a secessionist; he never heard him avow himself as such. Co never heard him arow himself as such. Corporal Mitchel was not present at the shorting.

Joseph Herman testified that he lived opposite to Boyd's house, and was well acquainted with him. On Saturday night observed the men lying along the fence near Boyd's, and heard a very loud rap at his door. The men tried to open the door, and witness heard a report from the door. The men stirted to run, but one of them stood fast, and called them back. They came back and fired. Witness did not hear but one report from the door. As soon as he heard the report from the door. As soon as he heard the report from the door, saw the coat on fire. After the firing, heard one of the men tell another to go to the captain and ask him for twenty men. They came in a short time, and surrounded the house. the captain and ask him for twenty men. They came in a short time, and surrounded the house. He beard them rap at the door, and saw a woman look from the window. He thinks she said ber husband was dead. They told her to come down and bring a light. She came down, and they went in and came out in a few moments. Witness never wes in the house in his life. The house was all closed. He did not observe any shots from the windows. He was well acquainted with Boyd, but never heard him express himself in reference to the political troubles. He saw one of the men come back after the squad had retired, and fire a pistol at the house. He never saw any persons but the neighbors go into the house.

Mrs. Margeret Boyd was then called, but Mr. Mrs. Margeret Boyd was then called, but Mr. Lloyd objected to her evidence being received, on the ground that the widow sould not give her evidence without prejudice. The justice, however, took her testimony, with the understanding that if Mr. Lloyd succeeded in his point, it would be ruled out.

Mrs. Boyd was then sworn, and testified as follows: Mr. Boyd came in between eleven and twelve o'clock, and had gone to sleep, but she had not. She heard a rap, and observed it to be Mr. Grinder and Mr. Wilkeraon, who came in and told Mr. Boyd that the soldiers were after him. While they were in the back room, she heard another rap, and looked out the window. The men saked if Mr. Boyd lived there, and she told them that he did, but he was not in—that he went up that he did, but he was not in—that he went up to the city, and would not be back till late. She asked them if they wanted to see him on par-dicular business, and they said they had news from Alexandria for him. She then went down stairs, and told Boyd to shut the door and put out the light, as the men were after him. said he might as well go out, as they would take him anyhow, and went up stairs and put on his best clothes to go with them. When he came down, he stopped to talk to Mr. Grinder, who tried to persuade him not to go out.

After Mr. Grinder and Mr. Wilkerson left the house, she heard the signals. She went into the room and opened the door, and saw the men around the place, and told Mr. Boyd not to go out; that they were all around there. Scarcely had she spoken, before they knocked furiously at the door, and broke the pannel in. At the same time they commenced to fire. Mr. Boyd did not fire; he had no pistol in the house, but one old one, which had been given to him for the baby to play with, and she is sure that that was not loaded. She was standing beside Mr. Boyd when he was shot; the first sheet took Mr. Boyd when he was shot; the first shot tool effect. The fatal one came through the window She called on them for God's sake not to fire; that they had killed her husband. She carried her husband up stairs, and laid him on the floor. Mrs. Mills, who lived up stairs, was called on for help. A second party came and demanded admission. Mr. Boyd did not say anything when he opened the door, but they exclaimed, "We've got you, you s—n of a b—h." The ba'l passed through his coat sleeve into his right side, and out of his left. She cannot say positively that the fatal shot came through the window. Mr. and Mrs. Mills, and two daughters, lived in the bouse. She did not know of her husband's going to Alexandria, nor never heard of his being She called on them for God's sake not to fire ing to Alexandria, nor never heard of his being in correspondence with prominent persons in the South. She had said, the day before, that she would have revenge on the accused parties, but she had made the remark thoughtlessly; Mr. Wright was speaking of the affair, and irritated her. The party rapped two or three times, and she heard one shot before the others. When shot, the deceased staggered; when she took him away, she had to jerk him about, to keep the balls from striking him. The men fired for about five minutes. She thinks that the first shot came through the window. She saw two or three balls come through the door, and heard the shots—one of them a small report, as if from a pistel.

The small report was on the outside. She does The smail report was on the outside. She does not know of any reason why her husband should have been arrested; she never heard of his having been notified that he would be arrested, and does not know of his having been a secessionist. She never heard of his joining a company in Alexandria. She had beard that some had been arrested for being Democrats, and was fearful that he would be, and told him to be careful in his tell. that he would be, and told him to be careful in his talk. He never received any letters from any place but Philadelphia, where he had friends. He never held any secret meetings at his house, for the purpose of conspiring against the Cov-ernment. The decessed never has been in the habit of staying from home during the day, un-til lately, when he has employed himself in Sablace.

Mr. John Jolly testified that he lives two doors from Boyd's, and was awoke by a loud rap on Saturday night between twelve and two o'clock. He saw nothing, but heard a voice demand the door to be opened in the name of the United States. After the rapping, the shooting com-menced; thinks that there was about eight or ten shots fired. He could not tell whather the first was a pistol shot or not, or where it came from. Orders were given for some one to go round the back way, to cease firing, and to go to the armory for twenty men. He heard some one say something about his coat after the firing. Don know anything of Boyd's political opinions.

Mr. John Maddox testified that on the night in question he was awakened by a volley, and looked out from his window and heard some one order them to cease firing. He heard the ser-geant say that he had received the balls through his coat.

George Martin testified that three gentlemen—he thinks Murphy and Mitchell were two of them—came to his house, and told him that Boyd had said to Mr. Polley that the Palmetto flag would float on the Capitol in less than a month. He went to Mr. A. Grinder's, and told him that he had better see Boyd, and tell him to give himself un.

give himself up.

John Partridge testified that he noticed the soldiers when he reached bome, and remarked that there was a screw loose somewhere. One of them, who were a sword, remarked that they had given Boyd notice. Mr. Martin came out and asked Murphy what was the matter. They then west around to Mr. Grinder's, and rapped him up. The next morning, witness and s man named Williams were at the house of the deceased, and examined a hole in the do by a pistel ball. It appeared that the ball was fired from the inside. He heard some one say that Boyd had bought some balls, or moulds, a few days previous.

Thomas Cook, jun., testified that he saw the guard going towards Royd's house, and followed them. They halted at Mr. Jolly's corner a few them. They haired at Mr. Jolly's corner a rew minutes, and then went to Boyd's door. The most of his testimony corroborated that of Mrs. Bean. He heard distinctly the remark, "Take this, you s—n of a b—," when the shot was this, you s—n of a b—," fired from the door.

Corporal Mitchell testified that he was not at the firing, he being then on his way to the ar-mory with Grinder. Keitly and himself were ordered by the sergeant to take Grindes to the stated before the jury that all the men were there, including Mitchell. ell and Keitly were discharged, it being proved that they were not present.

The case will be continued this afternoon.

MUSICAL INSTRUCTION.

Piano, Voice, and Violin.

PROF. W. A. LOVELAND, continuing his vocation as Music Teacher in the city of Washington, would announce to strangers coming here to reside that he offers his pupils the superior advantages of a thorough and greatly-improved system of instruction, including the departments of Harmony and Composition. Having had nearly thirty years' experience in teaching, he is able to adapt the lessons pleas-ingly and philosophically to the comprehension of the scholar, so that much of the tediousness common in musical discipline is obviated, and study and practice rendered highly attractive. Prof. L. has taught in this city several years, and is pleased to refer to numerous patrons for the most favorable testimonials.

Terms moderate. Prof. L. will keep in tune the planes of his pupils without extra charge. Orders may be left at his residence, No. 422 Seventh street, near G; at Mr. Adamson's book store, Seventh street, opposite the Post Office; or at Mr. J. F. Eills's pany them as a convoy,

The steamer Chesapeake arrived to-day from Fortress Monroe, where she landed 3,800 barrels of provisions. The steamer Parkersburg arrived this morning from Annapolis, and is now

Maine.

Portland, April 30.—Commander Thomas T. Craven has arrived here to recruit fee the naval service. Our first regiment has been quartered some days in this city, and awaits marching or-Famine in Mississippi.

Chicago, April 30.—The Bonnier Journal learns from a gentleman just returned from Mississippi, that in many parts of that State actual famine prevails, and the people are suffering for want of enough to cat. Corn, which is the chief article of food, is very scarce in the towns and throughout the country. At one station there were 200 can the country.

out the country. At one station there were 200 sacks, and that was the only core in that localsacks, and that was the only core in that locality.

There is but little money there, and those able to leave are ficeing the country to escape starving. Stations along the Obio and Mobile railroad are packed with freight, much of which has been there for months, those to whom it is consigned being too poor to pay the charges. The Railroad Company, to protect itself, has been obliged to adopt the rule to receive no mere freight for towns in Hississippi unless the charges are prepaid. The Journal vouches for the respectability of its informant.

Capture of a Government Steamer.

New York, April 30.—The schooner West Wind, Capt. Burnett, from Withington, N. O., 25th inst., reports that the steamer Uncle Ben had been taken as a prise, and her crew thrown into prises on the charge of being spice of the Federal Government. The authorities had sunk ressels in New Inlet, breaking up the channel. The Uncle Ben was a first-class steam-ug, chartered by the Government for service at Fort Sumter.
